

Detailed description: This figure displays a sequence alignment of multiple proteins across 190 positions. The proteins are aligned horizontally, with their names listed vertically on the left. A color-coded scheme is used to indicate conservation: black for identical residues, blue for conservative substitutions, and red for non-conservative substitutions. The alignment shows significant conservation across most positions, with several distinct regions of divergence highlighted by colored boxes.